Event Summary:

Objective:

Out of many engineering graduates only handful of people are employable. This is happened because of the gap between the engineering education system and the industries expectation from entry level engineers. This event was organized with the aim to make students aware of need of industries.

Event description:

The talk was start at 11.30 am with addressing and welcoming industrial expert Mr. Yavarbhai Pothiawala by Dr. Mita Paunwala, coordinator of an expert talk. After welcome address, an expert has shared his views about what students are learning in academic, what is the need of industry, what should be the attitude of employee, what should be the expectation from the industries etc. . Speaker has not only covered the above points also interacted with many students in Q & A session where students have asked their practical difficulties and speaker guided each of them in detail. At last, Dr. Amisha Shah, HoD of Electronics and Communication Department has shared her gratitude by giving memento to the speaker. Before starting of the talk, speaker has shared his views of how to bridge industry and academia gap with HoDs and senior faculties of ECED and ELED. It was a wonderful experience to have an experience industrial speaker for addressing students of our department as well of other department of the institute. The strength of attendees from our and other department was remarkable.
